

NSWNMA EDUCATION

Environmental Health Seminar

Friday 15th May 2015

Environmentally Sustainable Practice in Hospitals and Community Settings

In partnership with South Western Sydney LHD and following last years' successful seminar, there are new topics for nurses, midwives, other health workers and interested parties, based on the Global Green & Healthy Hospitals (GGHH) network and its goals.

Our exciting new speakers are nurses Debbie Wilson (NZ), Environmental Sustainability Project Manager, and Terrona Ramsay (CEO) of Kooweerup Regional Health Services in rural Victoria, as well as Chris Hill (Director, Environmental Sustainability, Mater Hospital) from a large metropolitan hospital in Queensland, all with their own special perspectives. We will also be hearing from Michelle Skrivanic and Alison Brannelly, two Sydney-based nurses who bring their expertise in environmental sustainability.

The day promises to be thought provoking, illuminating and practical for anyone in the health arena who has an interest in the future of Health and Health services in a changing global environment.

Register early and save the date! Friday 15th May 2015!

Liverpool Hospital – Auditorium
Corner Elizabeth & Goulburn Streets,
Liverpool
9.00am to 3.30pm

Members $60
Non-Members $85
Lunch and Refreshments provided