Estimation of impacts of 2016-7 Budget and MYEFO Cuts to Aged Care Funding in Strategic Electorates

Introduction

The last federal budget included significant changes to the Aged Care Funding Instrument (ACFI) used to assess the base-line level of public funding for the care of individual residents. The Budget Papers conclude the changes to ACFI will lead to a reduction of $1,152m in ACFI related funding over next four financial years. These cuts follow on from $607m in cuts announced in Mid-Year Economic and Fiscal Outlook last year. In total, close to $1.8b cuts to age care funding are forecast over the next 4 years.

The government states that these changes will affect only new and reclassified patients. However most frail residents with high care needs, and those with developing health conditions and co-morbidities are also likely to be affected. Most of these residents will report increasing acuity in the near term. As frailty of all residents increases over time, a high proportion of existing residents are likely to be affected as residents are reclassified.

This report has been prepared for the ANMF. It presents estimates of the impact of the Budget and MYEFO cuts on 36 strategic federal electorates identified by the ACTU.

Two stage change

The government intends to bring about funding changes in two stages. From July 2016, indexing of the Complex Health Care (CHC) domain within the ACFI scoring matrix will be halved. There will be a 30% reduction in subsidy for residents in medium complex care requiring more than 11 minutes of medication assessment.

In the second stage, commencing Jan 1, 2017, scoring for medications will be changed and the scoring and eligibility for some CHC treatments will also be reduced. A new three tiered classification of the level of medications assistance will be introduced based on: no treatment required; medications only; and injections. This will replace a time based rating of level of assistance. Where significant time was involved previously in assisting with medications in complex care, the treatment level was classified as high. Now only residents requiring injections will be rated as high level assistance and funded accordingly. In effect this downgrades funding for intensive medications assistance. There is also a lowering of scores and therefore funding and diversity of treatment options associated with regular monitoring of blood pressure and management of complex pain, oedema, DVT, arthritis and complex skin conditions.

Modelling impacts

The impact of MYEFO cuts in this Report have been distributed proportionate to the number of resident places at each facility. Modelling spatial impact of ACFI changes is more complex as facilities with a relatively high proportion of residents receiving complex health care will be more affected than those facilities catering typically for residents with lower levels of frailty. To estimate electorate impacts, we have weighted total places at each facility based on the proportion of residential places in each facility classified as high care places in the 2014 DOHA listings. Average weightings have been applied for new facilities.

The impact of cuts is modelled for each facility in the ANMF – UCoDA Agreements and Facilities database. Each facility is assigned to an electorate using street address and postcode data. Costs for each facility are then aggregated by Commonwealth Electoral Division. The results of this analysis are included in Table 1 of the Report.

Ansell Strategic – LASA Assessment

Ansell Strategic has been working with Leading Age Services Australia and individual providers to quantify the impact of budget cuts. Ansell argues that the budget papers significantly underestimate the impact of changes to ACFI. The Ansell Strategic estimates have also been used to generate a “high” estimate of impact in relation to the estimates contained in the 2016-17 Budget Papers, which provide a “low” estimate. The results of the Ansell estimates applied to the nominated electorates is included in Table 2 of the Report (See page 5, below).

ACTU Campaign Electorates

Modelling is presented for the 36 ACTU campaign electorates (about 24%) of all electorates. The estimated funding cuts by electorate are set out in Table 1 below.
