Clinical Communication and Documentation

This workshop explores the importance of the legal and ethical frameworks around communication and documentation that govern nursing and midwifery practice.

- Understanding your obligations with professional standards in regards to documentation;
- The patient's records and what is documentation to provide a full story;
- Unpack clinical handover and the exchange of information and what the responsibilities and accountabilities are for nurses and midwives;
- ISBAR: learn how it helps with providing comprehensive health communication;
- Report writing: learn how to keep it simple but tell the whole story.

Your Annual CPD Obligations

In this 1/2-day seminar, revamped for 2019, you will learn the ins and outs of your annual CPD obligations.

- How to develop a learning plan each year;
- How you identify your learning needs and objectives, linking them back to your current or future context of practice;
- How to record your CPD activities;
- Understanding of reflective practice;
- What to do if you get audited.

If you're still talking about "points", if you aren't sure why you would be required to develop a learning plan, or why you need to link your CPD activities to your context of practice, then this short course is an absolute must for you.
